

The Indiana Do-Not-Call list and regulations have been a welcome relief to the huge number of calls we used to get on a daily basis. We would welcome no change in this law even for existing business relationships like banks. If I need something, I'll call them. Under no circumstances should cell phone lists be given out.